

PRIVACY STATEMENT

Aegis Health must abide by the Australian Privacy Principles in the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) and other applicable laws regarding the handling of personal information by private health service providers, such as patient health information.

We are dedicated to following all relevant privacy regulations that govern how Aegis Health gathers, uses, discloses, and stores your personal information. This Privacy Statement outlines how Aegis Health facilities (both inpatient and outpatient services) will manage your personal information. For more details or a copy of our complete Privacy Policy, please inquire with a staff member, visit our website: www.aegishealth.com.au, contact the Aegis Health facility and ask to speak with our Privacy Officer, or send a request in writing to our Privacy Officer.

For patients, Aegis Health will collect personal information for the purpose of delivering health care and related services, including communication with health professionals, assessment for health services, emergency situations, and maintenance of medical records, among other lawful purposes.

For other individuals, Aegis Health will collect personal information for engagement in dealings with Aegis and related purposes. Personal information may be shared between Aegis Health facilities to coordinate care, and services may be outsourced to third parties, with necessary safeguards in place to protect privacy and confidentiality.

Aegis Health typically collects personal information directly from individuals but may need to collect from third parties when necessary. Personal information will only be used or disclosed for specific purposes with consent, for provision of health care, or as required or permitted by law.